

Website Name:

FitGuide- Personalized Nutrition and Fitness Planner

Description of Topic:

FitGuide is a website that helps people make better choices with fitness and nutrition. Users can enter information like their age, height, weight, activity level, and fitness goal. Based on that information, the website will give them estimated daily goals for calories, protein, carbohydrates, fats, and water. It will also include food suggestions and workout ideas that match their goals, whether they want to lose weight, maintain their weight, or build muscle. Users will be able to look through different foods and exercises to learn more about them. The website will also have a progress page where users can track things like their weight, protein intake, calories, and completed workouts. JavaScript will be used to make the website interactive by calculating nutrition goals and allowing users to search or filter foods.
